Harelip.

SOMETIMES THERE is a disturbance in the development of the body before the birth of the baby The abnormal condition which results is known as a "congenital anomaly For example, when a person is born with additional toes or fingers, as not infrequently happens the condition is said to be a "congenital" defect, a congenital anomaly

Cleft palate and harelip are among the most common of all congenital anomalies Although the actual cause back of these disturbances is not understood it is traced to some fault in the development of the unborn babe As a result the two sides of the upper lip fail to meet and join in the midline In consequence there is a cleft or separation of the tissues This creates the condition known as "harelip "

Sometimes the middle part of the upper jaw and the roof of the mouth may also be split opening into the nose. This is "cleft palate

It is commonly believed that this abnormality is the result of some shock or fright experienced by the mother before giving birth to the child There is no scientific foundation for such an idea

Heredity plays an important role in harelip cleft palate and other congenital abnoramilities As a rule these disturbances occur in certain families reappearing generation after generation But this is not always the case of course Because a single case has occurred in a family is no reason to fear that every new baby will be afflicted

There are various degrees of harelip In some cases the defect may be so slight as to be entirely overlooked for years In other instances it is quite apparent presenting a wide gap This type seriously impairs the nutrition of the baby

A child with pronounced cleft palate and harelip is unable properly to nurse Indeed it may be necessary to feed the child by means of an eye dropper Great pains must be taken to improve the health and to maintain the physical welfare of the child

Young children afflicted with this disturbance can only be cured by operation Fortunately this procedure has been so perfected that in the hands of a competent surgeon it is nothing to fear

Some surgeons prefer to operate as early as possible others believe the operation is performed with minimum danger to the child if undertaken at a later age But under no circumstances should it be delayed too long As the child grows older the bones become firmer and it is more difficult to correct the deformity

Bear in mind that the child who is born with a cleft palate or hare lip is by no means backward or permanently deformed. Once the defect has been corrected these children are as well off as the average child

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday Nov 6

THE ASTROLOGICAL forecast for this day is excellent for those in the employment of others promising preferment, favors or promotion Also some other affairs bringing contacts with superiors are under flourishing conditions although it would be well to be careful in signing papers Overcasting this benign rule seems to be an influence of intrigue mystery or secrecy calling for watchfulness especially in transactions with large corporations or secret bodies Under this same rule silent or understood agreements are fortunate. Personal affairs perplex

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of success and favors from superiors employers and those in power especially where secret understandings may figure rather than written agreements These should be viewed with precaution

A child born on this day may have many capabilities and successes but a glamor of mystery and romance overshadows the life

Red Cross "Carries On" Despite Fund Shortage

How to give a bed bath, illustrated above, is a part of the home hygiene and care of the sick program which the Marion County chapter of Red Cross sponsored this year

Editor's Note: The following is one of a series of articles on the services rendered in Marion city and county by the Marion County Chapter of Red Cross The chapter's annual roll call will begin Nov 11

Financially handicapped as the Marion chapter of Red Cross has been for the last 12 months and operating on a budget which has not provided for a nursing program the chapter nevertheless has carried on

Through the cooperation of the Ohio Emergency schools the chapter recently conducted three classes in home hygiene and care of the sick By means of this course Marion women were taught the simple procedures of healthful living and proper methods of caring for illness in the homes

Although the Marion chapter has been unable to provide a nurse for home visits it has maintained a nursing service which has proved a boon to many unfortunate Marion families

One of the principal nursing services was providing a loan closet of sick room supplies from which 98 articles were loaned since the 1934 roll call

Included in the supplies are hot water bottles ice pack bags bedding wash bowls a wheel chair and crutches

Thirty-one layettes made by volunteer workers were given to needy families through the nursing service

Mrs E R Barnthouse is chairman of the nursing service of the Marion chapter

Nearly 800 Red Cross public health nurses have been at work in communities throughout the country and have made more than 1,200 000 home visits to the sick during the past year according to Mrs Barnthouse

In addition to the 800 nurses on regular duty the Red Cross has enrolled more than 50 000 nurses who stand as a reserve for use in any great emergency These nurses are called upon to serve the army and navy in time of war or in times of peace to serve in Red Cross nursing units in great disasters

Through the national nursing service 833 944 school children were inspected and 200 000 of these children were treated for one or more defects In an intensive diphtheria immunization campaign in several of the southern states more than 20 000 children were given toxoid

BIBLE LECTURE IS GIVEN HERE

More Than 100 Attend Institute at Emanuel Lutheran Church.

More than 100 Bible students from Lutheran churches of Marion and vicinity and a few visitors heard Dr. O. C. Gast of Capital university discuss "Historical Books" at the second of a series of Marion Lutheran Sunday School Teachers' institute last night at the Emanuel Lutheran church.

Dr. Gast, professor of New Testament at the university, gave the histories of the Books of Joshua, Judges, Ruth, Samuel and Kings, explaining the authorship, and historical and religious purposes.

Historically the Book of Joshua furnishes the connecting link between the preparatory stages of Israelite life and their settled national life in Canaan, Dr. Gast said. Religiously it is to show for all generations in Israel that God is faithful and true, keeping his promises made to Abraham.

The Book of Judges historically records all that is known of the history of Israel from the death of Joshua to the time of Samuel and from a religious point it shows the fulfillment of Moses' threats and promises as recorded in Deuteronomy. The Book of Ruth, Dr. Gast said, fills the gap in the ancestry of David and supplied an important link in the ancestry of the Messiah.

The history of Israel during the period of the last two judges and the first two kings is continued in Samuel, the book which affords a strong confirmation of the truth of the Pentateuch. According to Dr. Gast's lecture last night, the Kings were originally one book. Its historical purpose is the tracing of the history of the united kingdom from Solomon's accession and of the divided kingdom until its two parts were conquered by Assyria and Babylon.

Rev. Paul Dobberstein of Prospect gave one of a series of short talks on the general theme, "The Christian." Rev. F. M. Koepplin of the Trinity and St. Paul's churches south of Marion presided.

Galion Trinity church furnished music. Miss Lois Dapper sang several selections, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Bertha Dapper.

The next meeting will be held Dec. 2.

Churches in Upper Sandusky, Cardington, Galion, Windfall, Prospect, Marysville, Waldo, the Emanuel church of Marion and the Trinity and St. Paul's churches south of Marion were represented last night.

Former Marion News Man Sells Magazine Story

Marion friends of John McClain, who has been making a name for himself in New York City as ship news reporter for The Sun and mingler with the "400," will soon be reading his first fiction effort.

Walter Winchell, McClain's friend and frequent press-agent, was given a tip in this morning's column by his "Girl Friday" to the effect that the ship news reporter has sold a story to Collier's magazine.

"John McClain peddled a pip of a short-short to Collier's, getting top coin ($500) for his first effort!", read the item.

McClain is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. McClain of Bellefontaine avenue. Not so long ago an article of his on the new French liner "Normandie," appeared in Vanity Fair.

George Ade Remembers Rogers in "Cupid Role"

In connection with a nationwide campaign to raise funds to establish memorial to Will Rogers, The Star is publishing a series of articles coming from noted men who knew the famous humorist and philosopher. One of these articles appears below. With each article there appears a coupon which may be used in making contributions to the memorial fund. Contributions may be forwarded to the Marion county committee, of which Fred W. Warner is chairman, or to any in Marion county, each bank having been named a depository.

Will Rogers once tried to play Cupid from the stage of a theater in which George Ade, Hoosier humorist, and Mary Garden, opera star, were members of the audience. They never had met.

Mr. Ade relates:

"My most amusing experience with him was at Orchestra Hall in Chicago at a matinee performance. He learned in some way that I was out in front and called me by name and later, when his show was over and he was sitting on the edge of the stage with his legs hanging over, trading wise-cracks and small talk with the ladies in front, he spotted me when I arose to edge toward the door. I had been seated below a box in which Mary Garden had been a much-observed celebrity.

"Will suddenly hailed me and gave me a long-range introduction to Mary in the box above and she acknowledged the introduction graciously and then Will suggested to her that it would be a good idea for her, as a confirmed old maid, to immediately have a conference with me, as a tough old bachelor, with the idea of getting married. He said we would make a dandy couple because I could work in the back room, writing my stuff, and Mary could close all the doors and do her vocal practicing at the other end of the house. He thought we were old enough to get married and it was up to us to act on this grand suggestion at once.

"Of course, the crowd shrieked with laughter and Mary Garden went into convulsions but I didn't do anything but stand there and grin.

"Usually when I met Will Rogers we talked mostly about Jess Andrew, with whom Rogers was very friendly because of polo and horses and Kin Hubbard, the lovable and unforgettable 'Abe Martin.'

"Rogers had a great liking for Kin and that can be understood because they were very much alike in their general attitude toward the human race.

"By the way, one of the great things that Will Rogers did was to marry the charming and intelligent woman known as Mrs. Rogers. When I happened to be with both of them he certainly did not conceal his attitude of deference to her and her opinions."

End Bad Cough Quickly, at One Fourth the Cost

Home-Mixed! No Cooking! Easy!

Millions of housewives have found that, by mixing their own cough medicine, they get a much more effective remedy. They use a recipe which costs only one-fourth as much as ready-made medicine, but which really has no equal for breaking up distressing coughs.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. The syrup is easily made with 2 cups sugar and one cup water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and makes the most effective remedy that money could buy. Keeps perfectly, and children love its taste.

Its quick action in loosening the phlegm, helping clear the air passages, and soothing away the irritation, has caused it to be used in more homes than any other cough remedy.

Pinex is a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its soothing effect on throat membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Daily Pattern for Home Use

BY ANNE ADAMS

SIMPLICITY INSURES POPULARITY OF SIMPLE-CUT HOUSE FROCK

There's nothing quite so nice to "try your hand at" as a simple cotton dress, for it's with just such designs as this that one learns to master the art of dressmaking. You'll find you can put it together in almost no time at all, using your competent Anne Adams Instructor as guide. Simpler sleeves than these just don't exist, and aren't they attractively scalloped and button accented? They take veritable inches away from too-broad shoulders, just as the entire frock tends to slenderize the heavier figure. Choose a sturdy, pre-shrunk cotton, such as percale or gingham, and let it be bright! Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions, included.

Pattern 2523 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 takes 3½ yards 36 inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. Be sure to state size.

AMATEUR OPERATOR ON EMERGENCY CALL

Radio Stations Asked To Stand By for Aid in Hurricane.

Charles Whysall, operator of the Marion station in the army-amateur radio system, was requested by Cleveland headquarters last night to stand by in case of emergency.

The emergency call was sent out to all stations in the eastern portion of the United States in connection with the hurricane and disturbances along the eastern seaboard.

On duty at 12 o'clock last night, Whysall heard a Georgia station report the passing of the storm area. Early this morning all stations in this section were relieved of the emergency detail.

The army communication system consists of amateur operators throughout the United States who hold special licenses issued by the chief signal officer of the army. The stations broadcast on a frequency outside the usual amateur band and were originally organized for the purpose of emergency communication for the Red Cross organization. Call letters issued by the army for the local station are WLHH, while the local amateur station also operated by Whysall has the call letters W8CML.

budget. He remarked jocularly that he might not be President then.

Although he has evinced only an academic interest in the Democratic attempt to retain control of the state assembly, it is generally agreed that Mr. Roosevelt is deeply interested in the outcome.

Close friends of the White House estimated the odds were about 24 to 1 against a Democratic victory because of the manner in which district apportionment lines are drawn. The Democrats control the assembly for the first time in more than two decades.

Retention of Democratic control of the assembly would prevent a Republican assertion that the President's home state had repudiated the policies of his administration. Republicans have predicated the election on new deal issues.

Mr. Roosevelt also awaited with interest the outcome of the gubernatorial race in Kentucky, the New Jersey assembly campaign, and mayoral elections in Philadelphia and Connecticut.

She knows she is not the daughter of the late Luke and Lucinda Farnsworth and that unless she can learn more of her past and of Luke's intentions, she cannot inherit his large fortune. She is living in the Finnish colony of Union Town, beloved of her neighbors and deserted by her "relatives" and even by Rob Crocker, her fiance. But John Neuman, with whom she is on a picnic, has proved helpful and kind.

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

New Future

"TOMORROW I sail," John said at length.

"And how long will you be away?" Anne asked.

"About three months."

"That means you'll return early in August?"

"Yes." He was silent a moment, then he turned to Anne and looked at her anxiously. "You'll be careful while I'm away?"

"Careful?" she repeated and laughed. "Goodness, John, you make me think there are gobbilns about to get me."

"There may be," he retorted. "Things have been quiet lately because there's been no fishing, but did you notice the water as we crossed the channel? The season opens soon and the fish are running in hordes."

He picked up a flat round pebble and skimmed it across the water, watching it skip along as though that were the most important thing in life. Anne watched him, not realizing the tenderness in her smile. She wanted to ruffle the glinting strands of his hair, to smooth the opened collar of his shirt.

"You know you're very precious to me, Kikki," he said as the rock dropped with a plop.

"I... why, thank you."

"Going away I had to tell you. You might not be here when I get back. You're the one I told you about that day I came back from Crescent City. I've known it since the first moment I saw you. I'll never forget that, Kikki, that football dance. I was feeling pretty good, had some fine luck on the field that afternoon and folks were treating me grand. I stagged it to the dance, just as I always did, because I could never find a girl to suit me.

"Duke Lansing and I were standing in the door, when you came in. You were looking very serious. I liked that. I was tired of giggles. You came on up the steps, you remember that short flight, and then you smiled at Duke. It was like the sun rising.

"There you were, everything I'd dreamed about in one girl. And Duke knew you. He introduced us, and wangled the dance for me, forced your escort to give it up. I won that dance and those three encores with my touchdown that afternoon. I'd have made a dozen, Nikki, if I'd thought there was such a prize waiting.

"After I'd given you back to that chap who brought you, I sailed over to Duke to ask who you were, where I could meet you. Oh, I remembered your name all right, I just hadn't associated it with the fisheries. But when Lansing said you were Luke Farnsworth's daughter that finished it."

"Anne," John said, "It's you I love."

"But why?"

"Nikki, don't you see the difference it made, me a fisherman, and your father the cannery owner? Oh, I know this is America and there is only democracy and the char-woman's daughter marries the merchant prince....in stories."

Anne looked at him in growing wonder. She was the girl who gave life a meaning to him. And she'd never suspected it. But hadn't she. Hadn't she known that that peculiar magnetic attraction he had for her couldn't have existed unless it was mutual?

"And now?" The words left her lips of their own volition.

"Now?" he looked at her, "Now I'm just where I was when you jumped from the Ahti that day. I couldn't believe my eyes when I saw it was you, and that I'd been privileged to hold you in my arms for that brief moment."

"Then John—"

"I'm still afraid, Nikki. You don't know yet, who you are, Nikki!" he cried, for Anne had jumped to her feet and after one quick intake of her breath, had fled into the shelter of the woods.

Running blindly, cut to the quick by her interpretation of John's words, Anne carried with her two astounding facts. She loved John Neuman. She never had loved Rob Crocker.

Checked in her flight by a barrier of hazel bushes, she pushed their branches back with her hands and slipped through to a tiny dell, carpeted by short grass and cut through by a small stream which trickled along over moss-grown rocks

Anne sat down and stared before her in dismay. She, who had thought herself cured of all love, had repeated her mistake in a scant fortnight. Could she depend upon her emotions? Perhaps she was merely fickle at heart, spinning like a magnetic needle to the nearest point of attraction.

With characteristic honesty she faced herself. She had been fascinated by Rob Crocker. Her pride had been satisfied by his obvious preference for her when so many other girls and women were bidding for his favor. And she had wanted a home of her own, a place she might tend with her own hands.

Her emotional nature, unstirred by the passing flirtations at school and abroad, had responded to the clever touch of the man of the world. But now she knew the difference.

"Nikki!" John was calling. "Nikki, where are you?"

She heard footsteps on the other side of the thicket, then the branches parted and John stepped through, strode across the grass and gathered her into his arms.

"Nikki, forgive my blundering way of saying things. You didn't understand, dear. It's you I love, you're worth all the names in the world."

"But you were right." Anne didn't fight against the blissful comfort of his arms. "I don't know—"

"Let me finish what I was going to say. You don't know that you're not Anne Farnsworth. You have only Tom Farley's word for it. If I dared think he was right, that you were just Nikki, I could tell you all I've wanted to tell you."

"But, John, he is right. I know. Judge Kellogg knows. Do you think the judge would let them do what they've done if he wasn't sure? John, I am just Nikki."

The pathetic loneliness in her dark eyes broke down Neuman's last reserve. "And does a name mean so much to you?"

"It means belonging to someone," she answered.

Their leavetaking, tomorrow, is both sad and happy.

Made Learns of Benjy's Bait-Gathering Business

THE MOUNTAIN hamlet comment upon young Benjy Hines, as retailed by our host, Bob Gibbs, was one with which I agreed. The small, self-contained youngster was indeed "quite a remarkable little lad," and I was not sorry to know that my own young son and his cousin would, in all probability, see a good deal of him.

Junior and Roderick have led sheltered lives, and the rough edges of reality have been well padded for them. I knew, as well as if I had been told, that any small luxuries in Benjy's life, such as the plaid necktie—of which he was so careful and so proud—were either gifts from someone outside his family, or were earned himself in his role of the "best bait-finder in the neighborhood." Yes, I was decidedly glad to have such a splendidly self-reliant lad thrown into the orbit of our boys. Benjy could teach them much!

Benjy Is Merchant.

The conviction was deepened upon our return from Meredith, where we found, as Mr. Gibbs had predicted, plenty of crawfish and worms. With an adjuration to the boys not to open the boxes until we reached the camp, Mr. Gibbs stowed the boxes on the floor of the rear compartment of the car. I added a forcible injunction of my own, for I knew from experience the fascination which live bait has for small boys in general, and our two in particular.

"We shan't need Benjy's worms," I told Mr. Gibbs as we again stopped before the small frame house. "But I do hope he found some. I shall want to pay him for his trouble, anyway. But—"

"You can't," Mr. Gibbs said. "Don't think of offering it. You would offend him deeply. Benjy's a merchant, and he doesn't believe in taking pay if he hasn't sold you any wares. There's no need of your getting out again," he added, hastily.

"If I know Benjy, the worms are in a box, neatly wrapped and tied and left with his mother, and he is off to his birthday party. I'll settle for them, and you can pay me," he finished as I took up my purse."

Prediction True.

He was back in less than a minute, his prediction evidently fulfilled, for in his hands he bore a box which justified his prediction. Depositing it on the floor in the rear with the others, he climbed into the seat beside me, his face bearing an amused smile.

"Benjy left word that the worms would be 15 cents," he said. "His mother told me that he would have charged a quarter if they had been big ones. But as they were so small, he couldn't charge so much."

"But he had just as hard work digging them," I protested.

"Benjy figures that's his hard luck as a merchant," he answered. "Don't underrate him," he added with a sudden grin. "If the worms had been larger than the usual run, he would have added to his regular price just as readily as he subtracted from it."

"I am glad to hear that," I said, sending the car along, but my admiration of Benjy tempered with a sense of pity for him. "But isn't there something I can do for him, or give him."

"When you know him better, you might make him some little gift—Nell can tell you better than I what he likes. He is a great chum of hers. He will thank you very nicely, and then—but I'll let you find that out for yourself. There he is now," he added, hastily changing the subject. "That's his aunt's house on the right."

Boys Envious.

From the yard we were passing came shouts of childish glee, as a group of small boys and girls, surrounding an improvised table in the yard, watched Benjy, who stood with knife upraised over a gaily-decorated cake.

"Gee! Mums! they're having a good time!" Junior said with distinct envy in his voice, and I [illegible] that he and Roderick, with their pastimes and [illegible] rigidly supervised, were missing something which Benjy possessed in abundance.

"They told me in Meredith," Mr. Gibbs said suddenly with a [illegible] for which I blessed him, "[illegible]

Don't Stake Your Child's Life against a Few Pennies

Don't Try to "Save" by Not Calling a Doctor or Risk Giving Unknown Remedies Without First Getting his Opinion

NOT seeing your doctor, when illness threatens your child, is not economy — it's a mistake upon which life itself often has depended.

By the same token, giving your child unknown remedies—"bargain close-outs" and "just as good" as standard remedies is staking a child's health against a few pennies.

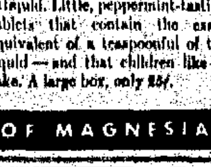
Mothers are becoming more and more conscious of this every day, and acting accordingly . . . accepting no remedy they don't know all about without asking the doctor first.

Do This If Your Child Takes "Milk of Magnesia"

If your child takes "milk of magnesia," ask your doctor, in your interest as well as ours, about Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

He will tell you, we are sure, that doctors, for over 60 years, have said "Phillips" for children. A remedy time has proved SAFE for your child . . . one of the finest products known to modern science; the kind you want your child to have.

Safety for You and Yours



You can assist others by refusing to accept a substitute for the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Do this in the interest of yourself and your children — and in the interest of the public in general.

Any druggist will be glad to give you the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, if you ask for it by name. It now comes in tablet form, as well as liquid. RIGHTMIRE PRESIDENT OF O. S. U. 10 YEARS

Designated Acting Executive in 1925 To Succeed Dr. William O. Thompson.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 5—A tall, square-shouldered man walked with a brisk step through the rain across Ohio State university's campus today. A tattered brief case he carried bore an Ohio State monogram.

For the last decade this has been a familiar morning scene — Dr. George W. Rightmire going from his home to the president's office.

Today Dr. Rightmire completed 10 years as president of the nation's fifth largest educational institution. But he went about his work as usual, content to let the anniversary go unobserved.

On a chilly night in 1925, the board of trustees summoned professor of law Rightmire to their meeting. The board designated him acting president to succeed Dr. William Oxley Thompson, who resigned.

Prof. Rightmire protested that the board must be joking and said he preferred to continue in the law college. The board overcame his objections.

The appointment was notable. Dr. Rightmire, a native of Lawrence county, was the first graduate of Ohio State to become head of his alma mater.

RAIN AND MUD HALT ARMY NEAR MAKALE

Fascist invaders have consolidated and "mopped up" an area approximating this:

The western column, operating to the west of the Aksum-Aduwa-Adigrat sector, has pushed 50 miles south from the Eritrean border to the Takkaze river and then marched east, and slightly south, in the direction of Makale. The eastern boundary of the spearhead occupied area slants from the Eritrean border almost 100 miles down to Makale.

Nearer Lake Tana

In the western area, the column under Pietro Maravigna has, in occupying the territory from Eritrea down to the Takkaze river, pushed the Italian lines 50 miles nearer to Lake Tana, in the northeast interior of Ethiopia.

This lake is the source of the Blue Nile river, providing for the fertility of Anglo-Egyptian Sudan and Egypt.

As the forces converged in the Agula sector for the drive into Makale, Italy at home went on a six-months "war diet," preparing the aggressor nation for the campaign of sanctions laid down by the League of Nations.

Il Duce's rationing regulations went into effect today. Butcher shops were closed and will be closed on Tuesdays hereafter. Diners in public places were allowed only one meat course. Regulations for conserving heat and power were imposed.

Plenty of Spaghetti

Spaghetti and noodles were untouched by the regulations—and thus the vast majority of Italians were only slightly affected by the decrees.

Although the meat courses were cut in public dining places, the prices remained unchanged. If a foreigner, or Italian, asked for two meats, he was informed it was unpatriotic.

The national association for fuel control set in motion its program for conserving power, heat, gasoline and coal.

Fascisti over the land accepted the changes without a murmur. Fascist youth paraded through the streets, singing songs conveying their contempt for the league's campaign of sanctions.

In Addis Ababa, as far as a foreigner was concerned, all was in contrast as regards food. It was cheap and plentiful.

The Ethiopian government was awaiting the arrival of Sidney Brown, secretary of the International Red Cross committee, from Geneva. At Djibouti, in French Somaliland, where he entrained for Addis Ababa, Brown said ambulance units from at least half a dozen neutral countries, were expected to aid the Ethiopian forces.

No Peace Until Elections

While diplomatic conversations were continuing, little hope was held out for any constructive peace proposals until after the British parliamentary elections Nov. 14.

There was no apparent sign of any specific plan to use as a basis for settling the east African strife. Nor was there, in Rome, any immediate sign of settling the friction between Italy and England. A government spokesman in Rome said:

"Italy and England do not yet speak the same diplomatic language."

This spokesman cited the following points of misunderstanding: Italy has been willing to recognize Britain's material interests in east Africa, but, he said, London has insisted it is not actuated in the Afro-European crisis by these interests.

Italian officials expressed the opinion the postponement of peace negotiations can be blamed on the British, inasmuch as the conservative government can not negotiate until the election is over.

In Geneva, the subcommittee on sanctions considered a resolution to include coal, petroleum, iron and steel in the list of key products to further strengthen the economic pressure on Italy.

TRIO SHOOTS DRIVER, FLEES WITH $25,000

Payroll Holdup at Salem Linked to Gang Who Held Up Madison Bank.

By The Associated Press

SALEM, O., Nov. 5—Posses of police, deputy sheriffs and citizens mobilized today to search northeastern Ohio hideouts for three robbers who shot a motorist after obtaining a $25,000 payroll late yesterday.

A belief the gang might have been the same one that robbed banks recently in Madison, O., and Conneautville, Pa., spurred the widespread search. United States officers were reported to be assisting.

The currency was taken from L. B. Vincent, assistant cashier of the Farmers National bank, on the steps of the Salem postoffice.

Herman Stratton, 30, of Salem, was shot in the head when he overtook the robbers' car outside this city. Police Chief Ralph Stouffer said Stratton gave chase in the belief the men were automobile thieves.

Hospital attendants said the wounded man probably would lose the sight of his left eye, but had a "fair" chance to recover.

The currency had been shipped in two packages from a Pittsburgh bank, and was intended to pay employes of the Mullins and Deming manufacturing companies.

Many persons in the street saw the robbers, but few realized what was happening. One or two persons said the gunmen's car did not have Ohio license plates.

BANKS WILL ACCEPT ROGERS FUND GIFTS

the Caledonia Banking Co., the Prospect Citizens' bank and the Campbell National bank of LaRue.

There will be no general solicitation of funds in Marion county, the movement being on a purely voluntary basis. It is expected those who admired Will Rogers will start immediately to take their contributions to the banks, Chairman Warner said today, and the pennies of school children are as welcome as substantial amounts from business places and individuals. Every dollar of the fund collected throughout the nation will be used for Will Rogers memorials, the form of which will be determined after the close of the campaign by a group of noted men who were friends and associates of the late cowboy-philosopher.

The drive opened yesterday on the fifty-sixth anniversary of Rogers' birth and will close Thanksgiving eve. Its object is to obtain the largest possible number of gifts from those millions who loved Rogers though most of them had never seen him.

It is hoped by the national memorial committee that the Will Rogers fund will swell to such a large amount that it will represent an imposing cross section of American life.

Eddie Rickenbacker, war ace, is national director of the memorial campaign and Jesse H. Jones is national treasurer. Chairman of the nationwide organization is Vice President John Nance Garner. The honorary Ohio chairman is Gov. Martin L. Davey and the active chairman is Earle Johnson of Cleveland.

Posters publicizing the campaign were expected to be received in the next day or two by schools, the library, ministers and public institutions. Chairman Warner said he will complete the organization of the Marion county committee today.

An offer of $20 even that Ralph E. Carhart would be elected city solicitor was not taken.

Weather To Cut Vote in State

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 5—Ohioans went to the polls today to elect municipal officers and vote on bond issues, tax levies and local option.

Rain and colder weather were expected to cut down even the light vote of slightly more than 2,000,000 predicted by George M. Neffner, election statistician of the secretary of state's office.

The election has no national significance, excluding a possible heavy swing toward one party. The electorate has taken no great interest, except in a few contests.

Vote On Relief Bonds

In addition to the election of officers for hundreds of municipalities, voters in 25 counties balloted on relief bond issues totaling $4,276,800, and scores of communities voted on bond issue proposals submitted to supplement federal works projects. There also were on the ballots general obligation issues totaling $10,820,731, school bond issues totaling $11,498,937, 267 school levies and 132 miscellaneous levies.

Proposals to bar the sale of beer, wine or whisky received attention in 46 towns and 66 townships.

Despite the lack of fiery campaigns, the balloting will have an important affect on the state's economic and financial status.

The success of the works progress administration program in Ohio depends a great deal upon today's voting, Dr. Carl Watson, WPA chief, said. Many projects already approved in Washington can not be begun until communities vote bond issues to finance their share.

Sees Many Get Jobs

Watson said that if all these bonds are voted, he felt the WPA could reach its quota of 213,000 workers on jobs by Nov. 30. Approximately 82,000 are at work now.

The faster the WPA program develops and absorbs relief clients, the more quickly the financial burden of providing relief will be lifted from the shoulders of counties.

The number of relief bond issues approved in the 25 counties may determine how much money the state government will have to provide for relief purposes.

C. C. Stillman, former relief administrator of Ohio, estimated that $2,000,000 a month would be needed after Dec. 1.

Cleveland's mayoral contest headlines the state's municipal contests. In that city, where both major parties have split over issues, former Mayor Ray T. Miller is opposing Harold Burton, another former mayor and city manager. Miller has Gov. Davey's indorsement. Burton won the Republican nomination from Mayor Harry L. Davis, nominal head of the party in Cuyahoga county.

Columbus Fight Intense

Next to the Cleveland contest in interest is the fight for mayor of Columbus, Henry W. Worley, the Democratic incumbent, is opposed by Myron B. Gessaman, Republican floor leader in the state house of representatives. Gov. Davey joined Worley last night in criticizing Gessaman's record.

The mayoral contests of Zanesville and Steubenville also have attracted state-wide attention.

William P. Wetherald, Republican mayor of Zanesville and target in numerous ouster moves, saw his power tested. Although not seeking reelection, he headed a faction in an intra-party fight.

The slaying of Deputy U. S. Marshal L. S. Prevatt brought the Steubenville election into the spotlight. John Nolan, Democratic leader, declared Prevatt was killed because of his activities in behalf of the Democratic candidate for mayor.

Voters of Lucas, Cuyahoga and Mahoning counties balloted on proposals to change their form of government.

DETROIT JUDGE BARS PLAY 'TOBACCO ROAD'

Says Dialogue Is "Stupid, Profane, Obscene"; Presentation in Fourth Week.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Nov. 5—Circuit Judge Guy A. Miller closed the play "Tobacco Road" today, characterizing the show as devoid of merit, and the dialogue as "stupid, profane, obscene and degrading." The play, based on Erskine Caldwell's novel, was in its fourth week here.

Judge Miller, considering a petition for an injunction to restrain the police from interfering with the production, attended Monday night's performance. Today he denied the injunction.

Judge Miller, asserting he was "amazed" that the play had been allowed to run past the "first 10 minutes of the first act," said: "It is difficult to imagine any production so completely devoid of literary or artistic merit. Possibly the actors might be able to act if they had a vehicle for whatever talent they may possess.

"The dialogue is stupid, profane, obscene and degrading. The characters are disgusting, bestial and brutishly cruel. So utterly foul is the whole thing that I would no more put into the records of this court the language that is used in it than I would conduct its proceedings in the fumes of a stench bomb."

CONGRESSMAN'S KIN GETS 10 YEAR TERM

Short is now held at Muskogee, Okla., on a charge of participating in the $18,000 robbery of two Okemah, Okla., national banks last Dec. 22.

"New York the fifth wheel of the new deal chariot." They predicted they would win the assembly by 10 seats.

Farley Optimistic

Democrats made no forecasts but James A. Farley, national and state chairman, was represented as feeling the Democratic majority would be increased. A total of 150 seats in the assembly was at stake.

New Jersey was electing a legislature of 60 members of the house and eight of its 21 senators. Republicans now control the assembly 34 to 26 and the senate 15 to six.

Former Sen. Walter E. Edge, Republican, described the New Jersey election as "the first and most important round in the presidential election of 1936."

In Kentucky, Chandler, present lieutenant governor, has been on the outs with Laffoon over the sales tax and other state questions. The action of Rhea, the governor's unsuccessful candidate in the September run-off primary, in going to the support of the Republican Swope, was not surprising to national Democratic leaders, but they had held some hope the breach would not reach that point.

Still For Roosevelt

However, Rhea told an audience of fellow townsmen at Russellville last night that he still was a supporter of President Roosevelt. Laffoon also had taken the same stand.

Chandler lieutenants had urged that a vote for him was essential to show approval of the President. Swope had remained silent on national issues and personalities.

Kentucky also voted today for 21 state senators, 100 members of the house and one congressman to fill a vacancy, E. W. Creal, Hodgenville Democrat, was unopposed for the 4th district seat vacated by the late Rep. Cap R. Carden.

BETTER PRISON FOOD SOUGHT BY SURVEY

Recommends Use of Dieticians and Household Economists at Institutions.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 5 — The Ohio government survey gave its attention today to better meals for inmates of state welfare institutions.

It recommended that a division of dietetics and household economy be established in the welfare department and that each institution should be provided with a household economist and dietist.

The economist would have knowledge of household materials, furnishings and clothing, and would teach women inmates how to make clothing. The dietist would have charge of the institution's kitchens, dining room and food purchasing, and supervise the planning and service.

The survey said the statistics show the "cost" price of meals to each employe and inmate is 4.75 cents, while the "market" price would have been 5.8 cents.

"This almost incredibly low food cost is accounted for chiefly by the fact that a considerable portion of the food is raised on the farms (of institutions) and by the low standard of the diet served in many of the institutions," the survey said.

It reported that in 1934 the total value of food produced by the farms and consumed by inmates was $850,000, and the value of food purchased by 21 institutions was $1,586,032, or a total food value of $2,466,032.

RUSSIA AGAIN ASKS FOR CLASH PARLEY

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Nov. 5—Russia again has asked the Japanese government to discuss officially a border patrol clash between Soviet and Japanese-Manchukuoan soldiers last month.

The Soviet ambassador delivered a second note to the Japanese foreign office, repeating an offer to set up a mixed commission to investigate the incident.

Prolonged discussion "must cast an influence on relations between the U. S. S. R. and Japan," said the note.

Japanese Foreign Minister Hirota, after receipt of the first note, presented a memorandum on Oct. 25 to the Soviet ambassador denying the Japanese government was involved. It said the protest should have been directed to the Manchukuoan government.

TROUBLE AT POLLS IN PIKE COUNTY

GOTHAM'S HOODLUMS KILL TWO MORE FOES

Bodies Found Outside New York Include Enemy of Murdered Dutch Schultz.

By The Associated Press

MONTICELLO, N. Y., Nov. 5 — The bodies of two men, one an enemy of the murdered gangster Dutch Schultz, and the other unidentified were found today in gangland's "dumping ground" in southern New York state.

Charles (Chick) Sherman's body was dug up from a lime-filled grave underneath a barn near Monticello. It had lain there not more than 36 hours, police said. Sherman had been shot and bludgeoned.

While a Negro grave digger was still spading the earth under the barn, on the theory that other gangland victims might be buried there, the body of a man apparently beaten to death was found in Knauth's lake, near Clarktown. Clarktown, in Rockland county, is 40 miles from here and lies between Monticello and New York City.

The second dead man's fingerprints were sent to New York City and Newark, N. J., police by authorities seeking a possible link with the recent Schultz slaying. Identification marks had been removed from the clothing. The man had been dead about 10 days. He was about 30.

YOUNGSTOWN GIRL HAS JOB'S PATIENCE

In Her 23rd Cast and Has Submitted to Six Operations In Four Years.

By International News Service

YOUNGSTOWN, O.—This is a story of Wilma Dunlap, hard luck and courage.

Miss Dunlap, a school librarian, is in a local hospital in her 23rd cast and has submitted to six operations within the last four years—yet she can smile and has admirable courage and faith.

It all began four years ago when Miss Dunlap, now 45 years old, fell down some steps while vacationing at Madison-on-the-Lake, and was taken to a Painesville hospital with a broken left leg.

She developed pneumonia, and was in the hospital three months. Later she went to Canton for another operation on an infected bone in the same leg, and was there six weeks more.

After returning to Youngstown, she was under care in a private home from June to November, during which time both of her parents died.

In December, Miss Dunlap returned to school—on crutches. Then the graft broke and she was placed in a heavier cast. But she continued school without missing a day.

At the close of the term, she returned to the hospital for another graft of the bone, and was there until February. She returned to school last month — still on crutches—but not for long. On her way home from school, her crutches slipped and threw her to the pavement, fracturing her pelvis.

Now she's back in the hospital for another six months, or longer. But she still smiles.

INNOCENCE OF MAN REVEALED TOO LATE

Devil's Isle Prisoner Goes Mad Before News Is Brought.

By International News Service

PARIS—Nineteen years ago, a young Frenchman, Jean Guien, was charged with the murder of an English dancing girl named Muriel Hayes, then appearing with a troupe in a music hall.

He was convicted, in spite of his protestations of innocence, condemned to death, then reprieved. Reprieve meant Devil's Island for life.

Three years ago, the real murderer was arrested on another charge, and signed a confession exonerating Guien.

Attempts to have Guien's conviction quashed revealed the fact that at about the same time, he [illegible]

CALL ISSUED TO NATIONAL BANKS

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 — The comptroller of the currency issued a call today for the condition of all national banks at the close of business Friday, Nov. 1.

Under the law the comptroller is required to issue at least three calls a year for statement of condition. He may issue as many as he deems necessary.

Today's call is the third calendar year, indicating that national banks will report four times. It has been the practice to time one call at the end of the calendar year. This supplies the treasury with data for comparative purposes.

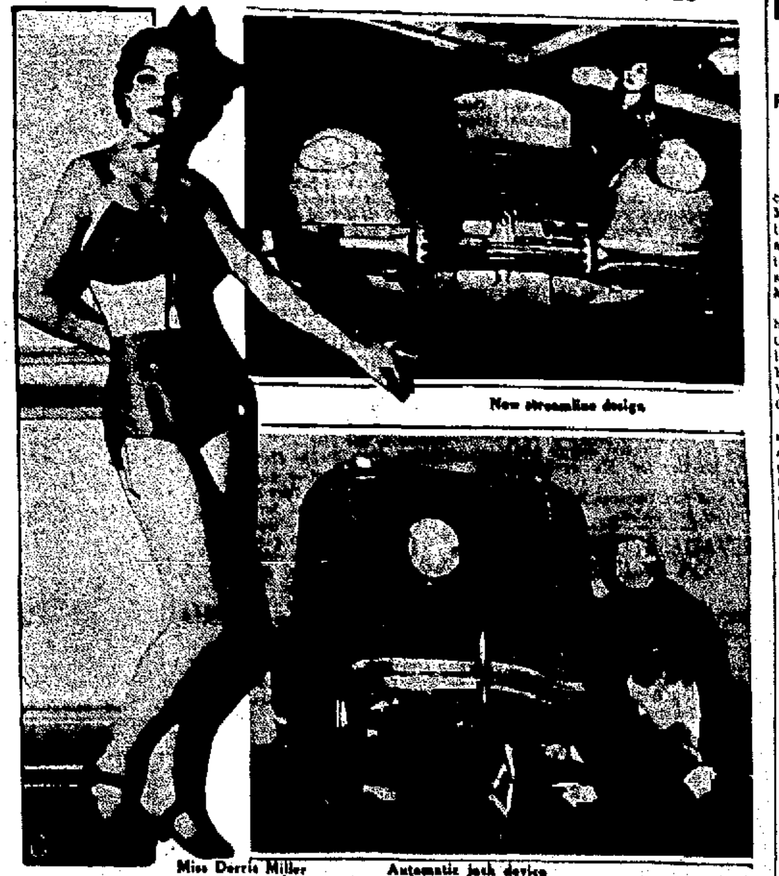
NOVEL INNOVATIONS FEATURE 1936 AUTO MODELS



New streamline design

Miss Dorris Miller

Automatic jack device

Numerous innovations in design and mechanical construction are featured in the new 1936 models now on display at automobile shows throughout the nation. One streamlined model, top, has headlights which are enclosed in the fenders, projecting by means of a lever on the dashboard. Another new wrinkle is the automatic jack which can be operated from the dashboard when the motorist has a puncture. As an added attraction to the Cleveland auto show, Miss Doris Miller appears in a style show wearing a novel swim suit which was made from old inner tubes.
